

JUNIOR LEAGUE OF SAN DIEGO

Built on an 90-year legacy of groundbreaking achievements, the Junior League of San Diego has established and developed many of San Diego's volunteer agencies and civic leaders. The 210 Maple: Preserving a Legacy Campaign celebrates the League's history of service while answering the call to create a place where our members and community can come together.

RESTORATION CAMPAIGN for

210 Maple

PRESERVING A LEGACY

A SITE OF HISTORY

Commissioned in 1916 by Dr. Harry Wegeforth, founder of the San Diego Zoo, 210 Maple was designed by Louis Gill, nephew and partner of famed architect Irving Gill. The house features the "Gill style," including a flat roof, white stucco exterior, and ground-level arch reminiscent of California missions.

The original landscape designer was Kate Sessions, the "Mother of Balboa Park."

In 1981, the League purchased and restored the home. That same year, it was designated as "The Wegeforth House - Historic Landmark No. 156."

In 2000, it was featured as San Diego Home & Garden Magazine's "showcase home."

STRATEGIC RENOVATION GOALS

Phase One

- Dedicated Lecture Facility
- Training Kitchen for Community Programming
- Outdoor Veranda for Events
- High-Tech Executive Boardroom
- Flexible Meeting Spaces
- Member Lounge with WiFi
- Improved ADA Accessibility
- Potential for House Rentals

Phase Two

- Community Impact Center Basement

With space designed for energetic work, more funds can be raised.

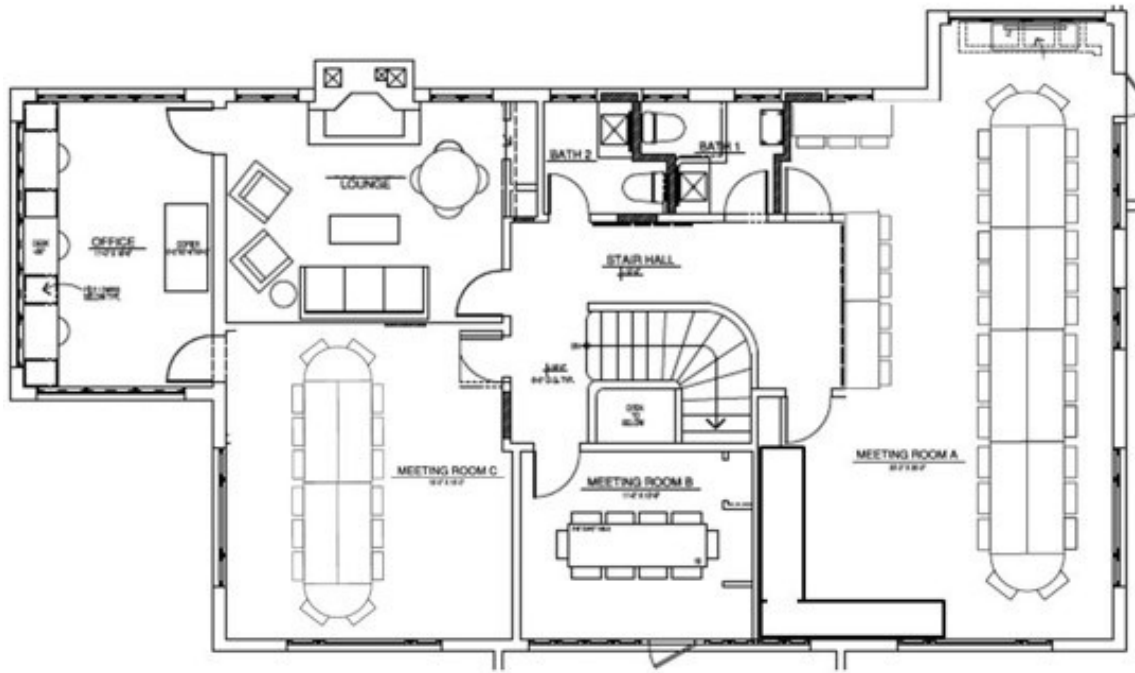

More foster youth can be supported. More organizations can benefit. More women can be trained to identify problems in the community, and beyond training, emerge armed with the know-how to solve them. 210 Maple will position us to do more of what we do best, improve our community!

210 Maple will be a hub of activity, ground central for growing programs, a base for leadership training, a think tank for innovation and problem-solving, and a historic venue available for community use.
